OUR ANCESTORS

Ancestors are folks that we hold dear,
Someone we think of in passing years.
The places they filled while they were living,
Were done with a great deal of giving.
All that they did and all that they were,
Is to us now like the balm of Myrrh.

The shortest life links its own with others,
Yet short or long they walk together.
A parting must come from those who leave,
The leaving goes on by those who grieve.
But grief is not all that life has in store,
There are happiness, joy and dreams galore.

We who follow must pick up the threads,
To weave a longer path ahead.
Weaving and living takes on new rapture,
And days bring forth their share of laughter.
Colors are woven in the path we trod,
Well is our honor to walk it with God.

Some threads are strong, some taut with care,
Others are worn with the load they bear.
Some threads are broken, some glisten like gold,
Some sparkle with silver, when days grow old.
Rose for the morning, yellow for the day,
Blue for the evening, night brings its gray.

God chooseth the pattern, He maketh the dye.
We choose the colors for the pattern called "I".
'Tis not ours to grumble or refuse the choice,
When God makes the pattern; take time to rejoice.

INTRODUCTION

This family history in book form was conceived and nurtured to completion in Honolulu, Hawaii, more than 5,000 miles from its main source of records. With the generous assistance of family members too numerous to mention individually, professional genealogists, custodians of various types of records, and genealogical, historical and biographical societies and their officials, the handicaps of time, distance and the inability to do present-day personal research have not been great enough to prevent the compilation of the genealogical records herein. Nevertheless, these factors plus that of cost, have limited the research on which these records are based, especially for the period after 1900.

Research began almost thirty years ago and has been carried on as circumstances permitted. On-the-ground research was conducted years ago in Hackensack, Jersey City, Trenton, New York City, Albany, and Washington, D.C. About 1 January 1958 preparations were begun to print this book. Research since then has been intensive by correspondence, hire of professional genealogists, and use of microfilm and printed records in, or added to the library of the compiler.

This history has been compiled from what is assumed would be the point of view of Albrecht Zaborowskij and his wife, Machtelt Vanderlinde, founders of the Zabriskie Family in America. Had they begun a family record similar to this, to be carried on by their descendants, they would have included all descendants and would not have dropped (as is done in many family histories) all female descendants from the record at the time of assumption of another surname through marriage. Even so, more emphasis and research have of necessity been placed on the members of the family carrying the Zabriskie surname, particularly those who lived in and near Bergen County, New Jersey, our original family seat.

The numerous Zabriskie family intermarriages with the Demarest family present a unique problem. Voorhis David Demarest (Z no. 10337) is preparing a revised genealogy of the Demarest family. To duplicate his extensive research work on all Demarest families of Zabriskie descent would represent a formidable and unnecessary task. To omit these families would present an incomplete picture of known Zabriskie descendants and fail to identify as such, many intrafamily marriages. A practical compromise was necessary, i.e. to make use of available records (mainly those in the 1938 edition of the Demarest history) with very little verifying or amplifying research.

Hundreds of individual family records; thousands of entries from church, vital and cemetery records; more than a thousand probate records; information from hundreds of land, military, pension and similar public records; scores of family bibles; and numerous entries from state and federal census schedules -- plus printed historical and biographical material -- have been obtained, merged and cross checked to form this family history.

No family history based on such a myriad of record sources can be entirely accurate. Many records cannot be verified by a compiler, and it has become somewhat customary to disclaim responsibility for errors resulting from inaccurate source material. Certainly no one of responsibility willingly uses inaccurate records, but unverified data are sometimes used upon the assumption that they are correct, and thereby the compiler may at times unwittingly use erroneous material for which he thus becomes responsible.

And the compiler cannot, of course, escape responsibility for errors in judgment as to relationships, clerical errors in records of all types, mistakes made during the preparation of the manuscript--in short for this history as written. He realizes a sense of responsibility likewise for that which should have been written but was not; for any perfunctory or incomplete research which may have possibly resulted in significant omissions in this history. For any errors, and for his inability to obtain more extensive biographical material, he offers his apologies.

Yet, if this labor of love in its magnitude is found to be of value as a whole and an encouragement to others to further pursue the compilation of Zabriskie Family records, he will, with a sense of satisfaction in the accomplishment, feel amply rewarded.

FOREWORD

An immense work such as this involves much more than meets the eye. Looking for the proverbial needle in a haystack would, by comparison, be an easy task. In genealogical work, one begins not knowing where the haystack is; and when he finds it, he does not know whether it contains a needle, at least, not until he has gone through it. And whether he finds something of value, or not, there remain many more haystacks to be examined. The allegory is obvious - the researcher is required to use much ingenuity in looking for the unknown and to have the perseverance to keep right on going. Fortunately, if he is resourceful and persistent he may eventually amass a quantity of vital statistics and glean much family data.

After the collection of the basic material the job is not finished; then begins the preparation of the organized genealogy. The multitude of family records, biographical data, and other information must be evaluated and arranged in an orderly and understandable fashion - a formidable undertaking in a genealogy of this magnitude.

In the present instance there was a complication, as it was necessary for the compiler to dispel erroneous traditions long assumed to be correct, requiring critical analysis and logical interpretation by him of original documents and records. To counterbalance some of the difficulties, he had the good fortune of working with a family of prominence, originally centered in a relatively small area.

Finally, the preparation of an index, especially an index of the kind found here, represents in itself no small task.

All of the above the compiler has accomplished in this monumental work, pursued despite the handicap of distance, which required extensive and systematic correspondence and the accumulation of a complete library of books, microfilms, and transcripts, undoubtedly one of few complete collections of material relating to the area of Bergen County, N.J., the ancestral home of the Zabriskie pioneers. He has been a veritable dynamo of energy and has pursued the work with much zeal, motivated to a substantial degree by religious convictions. As Mr. Donald A. Sinclair has written, the work "seems as full as possible, minces no words, and deals with the problems most directly." Surely the members of the family will recognize the great debt of gratitude due an outstanding member of their clan.

The name Zabriskie has long been renowned. My first acquaintance with it came years ago by way of the perspicuous essays of Chancellor Zabriskie appearing in the New Jersey Equity Reports. More recently, articles by George Olin Zabriskie, the compiler, published from time to time in various genealogical and historical magazines have made the name famous among genealogists.

It should not, I hope, violate the usual amenities to take the pleasant privilege of alluding to Mr. Zabriskie's important interests and accomplishments concerning which he is understandably modest. Besides being a competent genealogist, he is a good husband and father, and has served, and continues to serve, in offices of much responsibility and activity in his religious denomination, all the while holding with honor important positions as a civilian employee of the United States Army; moreover, his appreciation of the fine arts has continued, especially in the field of music, particularly that of the Masters.

It is not possible to list all of Mr. Zabriskie's activities within limited space; we shall be content to cite a few instances of honors bestowed upon him.

Mr. Zabriskie is a member of the High Council and Chairman of the Genealogical Committee of the Honolulu Stake of the Mormon Church, is coordinator of the Hawaii Welfare Region of the Church. Prior to these assignments he served as Bishop of the Kaimuki Ward for five years.

He was selected as the Federal Employee of the Year (1961) by the United States Army, Hawaii, for his outstanding achievements in the field of public administration, and the wide scope of his responsibilities as Deputy Program Coordinator. In this capacity, he acts as technical advisor and consultant to the Commanding General, Chief of Staff, Deputy Chief of Staff, Comptroller, and other staff officers on all financial and programming matters. In a command directly administering over $50 million worth of Federal appropriated funds, and supporting a strategic reserve combat division, Mr. Zabriskie occupies a key staff position. In 1957 he commenced the major project of installing in Hawaii the Army Command Management System, and as a principal architect of the system was chosen to be its civilian administrator. He is at the focal point for fact finding and making recommendations and guiding command decisions which aim at maximum economical use of public funds and other resources, so as to buy the greatest possible security and defense potential for each tax dollar.

Mr. Zabriskie has been called upon to deliver numerous lectures on principles and techniques of management before various department heads of the State of Hawaii and before professional societies.

The United States Army has officially commended Mr. Zabriskie and conferred upon him a number of awards: successive decorations, evidenced by certificates and medals, for Meritorious Civilian Service, under dates of February 1948, June 1957, and January 1962, and substantial monetary awards for performance of "special acts or services" in June 1957 and July 1958, and for "outstanding and sustained superior performance" in September 1962.

It is a pleasure to acknowledge my appreciation of the opportunity of writing this foreword.

Some variations are due to phonetic and typographical errors, e.g. Vabriskie and Zabriskei. Others are due to misinterpretation of illegible or archaic penmanship - e.g. Zaberowsky and Laborofskij were reproduced by different persons from the same signature. Others are actual spellings in use at various periods. The majority, however, are Dutch and English clerical versions of a name phonetically foreign.

THE ZABRISKIE FAMILY AND ITS PROGENITOR

GENERAL

This history is devoted to the early immigrant, Albrecht Zaborowskij (Albert Zabriskie), his wife Machtelt Vanderlinde and their many descendants.

The name "Zabriskie" is undoubtedly of Polish derivation, and thus the Zabriskies form a Polish American family - the first such family of consequence. But it is so far removed in time from Poland, and from the other families of American Polonia whose roots in Poland are of much more recent vintage, that it has little in common with them except its Polish type surname and an appreciation of the value of its many centuries of Polish heritage. By virtue of locale, language, religion, and marriages with early Dutch Americans, the Zabriskies also form an early Dutch American family whose male members of direct descent are eligible for membership in The Holland Society of New York.

For many years the true European origin of the Zabriskie family has been the subject of much research by members of the family and by Polish American and Dutch American historians. (See Appendix O for excerpts.) To date nothing conclusive has been found - claims and traditions to the contrary.

ARRIVAL

The progenitor of the Zabriskie family (Albrecht Zaborowskij) came to New Amsterdam (New York City) in the ship d'Vos (The Fox), sailing from Amsterdam, Holland. One account says that the ship left Amsterdam at the end of May, 1662, crossed to England and left there the middle of June; arrived off Sandy Hook on 31 Aug 1662; the passengers disembarked at the foot of Wall Street on 2 Sep. This account also states that the log of the trip is at Albany, N.Y. An attempt to locate this log revealed that "the list of emigrants from Holland to New Netherland from 1654 to 1664, with their accounts, debit and credit (New York Colonial Manuscripts, Vol 14, pages 83 ff) includes persons arriving on various ships. These documents have nothing to do with a ship's log and are nothing like a ship's log, and there is nothing to indicate that the log of The Fox was ever at Albany."

Albert's debit account follows (no credit account was found):

Debit Jan. 1. N. Y. 1662. -

(English translation by Dr. Simon Hart, Archivist, City of Amsterdam, The Netherlands.)

Thus, Albert and each of his fellow passengers paid 42 guilders for fare and meals, and three guilders and ten stivers for a storm coat and sleeping accommodations "to 31 Aug 1662". The accounts appear to have been paid on 2 Sep. Contrary to these well-documented facts, one German account says that our ancestor came to Pennsylvania in 1662. Another account says that he, as a school boy sailed from Danzig and landed at Staten Island.

FAMILY NAME

In the list of passengers on "The Fox" and in the German Lutheran records in New York City, Albert's surname was spelled "Saboriski". The earliest entries in the New Jersey land records and those in the Bergen (Jersey City) Church record show similar spellings. However, the various signatures available today read "Albrict (or Albrect) Zaborowskij", thusly: Albert Zaborowskij. In a deed dated in 1702 which our progenitor endorsed in 1708 his name is given in the body of the deed as Albert Zaborowskij. This can be accepted as his name because the Polish "Zaborowskij" and the German "Saboriski" are phonetically the same. The reason for the apparent shift from the German spelling to the Polish is not known.

In most records our ancestor's given name was spelled Albert and his signature is in the German form of this name. Four of his sons each named his first son Albert; the fifth son so named his second son. (Such action followed the Dutch practice of naming the eldest sons for their grandfathers.) Even so, one Polish American writer claims that our progenitor's first name was Alexander, not Albert. This illustrates the many contradictions found in the records concerning the founder of the "foremost, and most widely spread of the colonial Polish American families", and concerning his name.

FAMILY ANCESTRY

There are three different Polish ancestries (Sobieski, Zborowski, and Zaborowski) from which descent is claimed by various present-day members of the family. One claim may be correct, but certainly all three cannot be. None has been clearly proved to be correct and may never be.

Claim No. 1 - Sobieski. The oldest and most widespread claim is that Albert was a Sobieski, either the son, brother, nephew, or cousin (depending on which version you accept) of King John III of Poland, Jan Sobieski. Jan was only about 14 years old (or 9 according to which birthdate for Jan is used) when Albert was born. Jan left no continuing posterity, nor did his one adult brother or other near relatives. Then too, if Albert was a Sobieski, why did he sign his name as Zaborowskij? No member of the family has claimed the right to the Sobieski coat of arms so far as is known. Whatever the ancestry of the Zabriskies may be, we are not Sobieskis.

Claim No. 2 - Zborowski. This claim to Polish ancestry relates the Zabriskies to the magnate Zborowski family, and one branch of the Zabriskie family has used a Zborowski coat of arms. One Polish American writer says that the Zabriskies claim descent from Samuel Zborowski. Nowhere else has such a claim been found. A descent from Samuel's younger brother, Christopher, has been claimed. This claim has been carefully researched over the years without success. No one has ever found that Christopher or any of his brothers left posterity that could have sired Albert, the progenitor of the Zabriskie family. And to have been a Zborowski, Albert would have had to add an "a" to his surname between the "Z" and the "b". This he could have done, but why? It is not likely that he did. It does not appear that we Zabriskies are Zborowskis.

Claim No. 3 - Zaborowski. Some members of the family claim a "Zabriskie" coat of arms. How there can be an authentic coat of arms for an American family with a surname developed in America, with no proven European ancestry, is not perceived. But one can be purchased! An inquiry to one firm about the source of the arms brought the evasive "We do not trace families". Actually, as was already known, the alleged arms were those of one branch of the Zaborowski family of Poland. All supposed "Zabriskie" arms are not exactly alike - they vary a little depending on which branch of the Zaborowski family the "author" copied them from.

Albert was likely a Zaborowski. That was the way he signed his name, and it is phonetically the same as the surname he used when he first came to America. But the Zaborowski ancestry erroneously claimed for him cannot be accepted. This claim gives his father as Hans Zaborowski who died in New Amsterdam in 1675. No basis for this or any information that such a person came to America has been found. The claim also gives Albert a brother, Hans Jr., who died 28 Sep 1718 in New Amsterdam. No indication that such a person was in New Amsterdam has been found. Although the German Lutheran records of New York City do show a death on that date, it is that of Hans Karoski. There are no family traditions that relatives of Albert lived in America.

In summary, it may be said that by reason of Albert's use of the Polish spelling of his surname in his signatures, we can be sure that he was of Polish ancestry, but was not necessarily full-blooded, for we do not know the identity of his mother. From the German form of his given name and the use of the German form of his surname in various records, we can surmise that he was likely part German. Again, we do not know where he was born. We do not know with certainty exactly how he spelled his surname in his early life. We do not know whether he was of noble birth (he was not of royal birth), or whether he was, instead, a commoner. We do not have enough established facts to make any claim as to his ancestry or his right to a coat of arms. Nevertheless, the conclusions of the compiler are that Albert was a Zaborowski, part German, and a member of the lesser nobility.

One final point: During the New York City World Fair of 1939-1940, the Polish Government exhibition had a purported portrait of Albert and gave his surname as Zaborowski. The source of the portrait has not been found. See Page 24.

EUROPEAN BIRTHPLACE

When Albert came to America on "The Fox" he gave his home (which was likely but not necessarily his birthplace) as Prussia. However, one writer has Albert coming to America from the Upper Palatinate. In the Old Bergen Church records at Jersey City, we find that at the time of his marriage Albert gave his birthplace as "Enghstburgh". (There is a small "e" written above and between the "t" and the "b" as though in correction, so perhaps it might be spelled "Enghsteburgh".) The Reformed Dutch records are a reliable source of birthplaces, but this entry, written by a Dutch clerk, may not have been spelled correctly. It has been variously located as Engelburg (Pokrayno in Polish) in Poland; Insterburg in East Prussia; in "Austrian Silesia"; in "Zolkwa, Poland"; and as an old castle and section of Enns, Austria. Research has not revealed which, if any, is correct. It is the conclusion of the compiler that Albert was born in or near Insterburg, now called Chernyakbovsk (near Kaliningrad on the Bay of Danzig, Baltic Sea), in the USSR. In the 1600's it was in Prussia.

LOCATION OF AMERICAN HOME

As stated, Albert came to America on "The Fox", arriving in August 1662. Only one other reference to him prior to his marriage in January 1677 has been located. In a deed dated in 1702 he is mentioned as having been of "Ackinsack" in 1675. This place has been variously located, but it was then, as now, in Bergen County, and therefore, on the east side of the Hackensack River, likely in or near the Teaneck-Bogota-Ridgefield Park area. Ackinsack is where Albert later owned land and where he lived as a planter - a farmer. Here is where he died and was buried, according to the New York City German Lutheran Church records.

But Albert's several tracts of land on the east side of the River did not run from the Hackensack to the Hudson - rather to Overpeck Creek, a tributary of the Hackensack. There is no evidence that he owned land at Tappan, N.Y., as claimed by some. He did own land on the west side of the Hackensack (part of Essex County until late 1709), including large tracts at Paramus. He did not build the Zabriskie-Von Steuben House near Hackensack on the west bank of the River, as an account printed in Germany states. A grandson, John Jr. was the builder.

The extent of the land holdings of Albrecht Zaborowskij can only be partially determined from present-day records, and precise locations cannot be determined. His homestead was on the east side of the Hackensack River in the Teaneck-Bogota-Ridgefield Park area (Bergen County) as stated. His holdings here ran from the Hackensack River to Overpeck Creek. North of this in present-day Dumont his son Joost built his home and it can be surmised that Albert held land in that area (then Schraalenburgh). He may have held other land on the east side of the Hackensack which cannot now be identified.

Albert held extensive tracts of land on the west side of the Hackensack. Land here was in Essex County until 1709 and readily distinguishable from land on the east side of the river in Bergen County. One tract obtained by "Indian purchase" was "in old Paramus" (likely River Edge-Paramus), and ran from the Hackensack west to Sprout Brook. Most or all of this land was sold and therefore not later owned by descendants of Albert. The home of his second son, John, was apparently in or near the present Hackensack, so we can surmise that Albert owned land in that vicinity also.

In Paramus, lying west of Sprout Brook to Saddle River, Albert held the "Old Paramus" patent; on 10 Dec 1734, Jacob, the eldest son of Albert transferred title for 1067 acres of this land to his brother Christian. This patent apparently ran along the last bank of the Saddle River, south to north from a point a half mile or so north of Arcola to Midland Avenue or perhaps somewhat north of that street. North of this point descendants of Jacob and his brother Hendrick held much of the land and it can be surmised that Albert held patents for at least a portion of the land from about Midland Avenue north to about Glen Avenue or even Linwood Avenue. On the other hand it is possible that these lands were purchased by Zabriskie descendants or inherited by their spouses.

In 1702 Albert was given 1200 acres of land by the Indians in the "Werimus" area. This has been called the "New Paramus" patent. This land lay on the east side of the Saddle River running south to north from about the intersection of East Saddle River Road and Werimus Road to Woodcliff Lake Road. In 1708 Albert sold the northern half of this land to Thomas Van Buskirk. As few Zabriskie descendants lived on the southern half, it is likely that at least portions of it were also sold by Albert or his sons. Harvey (page 34) says that the patent was "bounded West by the Saddle River, North and East by Claes Jansen Romeyn, and South by Albert Zabriskie." If this description is correct and Albert did hold land immediately south of this patent, then apparently he held a major portion of the land along the east bank of the Saddle River from just north of Arcola to Saddle River Village (a distance of about seven miles).

See also Appendix A for discussions of Zabriskie land titles prepared by Frederick Wessells Bogert (1971), President of the Bergen County Historical Society and Willard L. DeYeo (1945), an authority on Northern New Jersey local history.

RELIGIOUS AFFILIATION

Albert was of the German Lutheran faith, not Dutch Reformed. Whether he studied for the Lutheran ministry before coming to America as some family traditions have it, is not known, as we have no records on the subject. The claim that he preached in the Lutheran Church in New York City or Hackensack is not substantiated by the records, nor is the claim that he founded a Lutheran church in Hackensack. That he was a Lutheran is evident; for example, his death and burial are recorded in the German Lutheran Church records.

Additionally, Albert's wife, Machtelt Vanderlinde, was an American born Dutch; was christened in the Reformed Dutch Church in New Amsterdam; and was evidently a member of the Bergen Reformed Church at the time of her marriage. But she adopted her husband's Lutheran faith, as shown by the membership records of the Old Bergen Church at Jersey City:

"A.D. 1680. den 11 Octob.

*Machtelt van der Linden, g. v. Albert Saburafly.

 weit gaddo. is afgovalen, du. dat sy gfaecht

 te. govalen. dat adugotwordent wordt, als den nlyc in 2. w', opdat aundord, dit zionde, gote-sijnbruch moecht liden van den geloude. "*

"A.D. 1680, The 11th of October, Machtelt van de Linden, wife of Albert Saburasky, but left us after having only once communed, and returned to the Lutherans, whose faith she had formerly forsaken - which has been put down as a cliff in the sea, that others seeing this might not be wrecked in their faith." (Holland Society translation)

(The printed copy of this entry is very misleading and has led many, including one Polish American writer to believe that Albert was a member of the Bergen Reformed Dutch Church for one communion. This was not true.)

Perhaps later Machtelt may have returned to the Reformed fold. Her five sons became members of the Hackensack Reformed Church. But Machtelt is not shown as a member of that church. Her last two sons were christened in the Hackensack Reformed Church, but this does not prove church membership.

An examination of the extant records shows that Albert, as a Lutheran, did not belong to the Reformed Dutch Church "on the Green" in present day Hackensack. He did not help found the church. He did not carve his initials "by his own hand" on its walls (in fact, there is no "A S" or "A Z" on the walls). He was not "one of the most diligent and generous members for over 25 years." (By the way, one Polish American account says these same things about a Hackensack Lutheran church.) He does not lie buried in its churchyard. His name does not appear on its membership records. His name does, however, appear six times in the christening records of the church; i.e. twice when two of his sons were christened there and four times when he appeared as a sponsor (twice for namesake grandsons). Albert's sons and their families were, of course, members of the church, and it was two of his descendants (Albert C and Peter) whose names are carved on its walls.

Albert and Machtelt were not married by the Dutch Reformed Church domine at Bergen (Jersey City), the entry in the Bergen records having been misconstrued. This is the official record:

Handwritten Dutch church record from 1677, mentioning Albert Zaberowski and Machtelt Vander Linden. The text is partially obscured by a dark rectangular area on the right side.

"1676, December 17. Albert Zaberowski, Y.M. from Enghstburgh, and Machtelt Vander Linden, Y. D. from New York. Received certificate January 8, 1677." (Holland Society Translation.)

"(1676:17 Dec) Heeft Albert Zaberowski : j (onk) m (an) van Enghst<sup>e</sup>burgh ende Machtelt vander Linden : j (onged (ochter) van Nujork Haer Cerste houwelyckse Proclamatie gehadt ende sonder verhandering van drie van de selve soo is haer op den ( ) januari 16( ) Fooge gegeven". (Dutch language copy made by Professor Adriaan Barnouw of Columbia University.)

"(1676;17 Dec) Albert Zaberowski, bachelor of Enghstburgh (?) and Machtelt vander Linden, maiden of New York, have had their first publishing of the banns, and without remission of three of the same they were given their certificate on ( ) January 16 ( )". (English Translation by Professor Adriann Barnouw.)

("The Professor is not sure of the date. However, the Voorlezer makes an 8 on its side, and the '77' is now obliterated, as is also a part of the '6'." - 22 Feb 1961 - David Rowland, Curator of the Old Bergen Church.)

It was Machtelt's permission to marry after proclamation of banns to her church congregation that was given on 8 Jan 1677, and not a marriage certificate, as will be seen by a study of similar entries in the Bergen records. Unfortunately, the name of the church or minister to whom permission was given was not stated as was true in virtually all similar entries of that period. Nor is a record of the marriage entered in the Register of the nearby New York City Reformed Dutch Church. Hence, they may have been married by a Lutheran minister, although the available records do not show whether or not there was one in New York City at that time.

TRADITIONAL CLAIMS

There are some traditional claims about which no factual information can be found:

(1) The claim has been made that Albert lived among the Indians for several years. It is likely that he did, for in 1679 and in 1709 he acted as an interpreter. It is also claimed that his eldest son, Jacob, lived among, or was stolen by the Indians. Perhaps so, but we have no factual knowledge on the subject. There is, however, no evidence that the Zabriskies have Indian blood, as claimed by one branch of the family.

(2) There is a claim that Albert was the first Justice of the Peace in upper Bergen County, being appointed by Gov. Hamilton in 1682. Perhaps he was, but no original source records in support of this claim have been found.

(3) Albert may have been well educated. We know that his signature was strong and firm at age 70. But this is all we have as evidence of his degree of education, and all it proves is that Albert could write his name.

(4) Albert may have been impressed into, or have otherwise entered the Prussian Army as alleged, but we have no factual knowledge of the subject one way or the other. The same is true of alleged residence in Holland before coming to America.

Now turning to two statements that demonstrate how far afield from the basic facts the family traditions have gotten we mention:

(1) "In America his (Albert's) hands could not take the rough work, thus disclosing that he was of royal birth." (By this reasoning all white-collar workers without calluses are of royal birth.)

(2) "In our selection of a Zabriskie coat of arms we chose the one with a crest which indicated that the family had participated in the Crusades - for we have heard that our ancestors were in the Crusades." (Which remote ancestors and from whence came the information down through the many centuries since the Crusades?)

SUMMARY

Albert, "though not the first of the Polish settlers in the United States, will always be an important figure in the Polish immigration." He was "humane toward the Indians, loyal to the white settlers; he helped build communities with his spirit and hard work, never marring the good name of Poland by a bad deed. He beat the path for succeeding generations, and fathered a Polish American family that became one of the most prominent in the United States." Albert, "his sons and other descendants accepted the Dutch ways of their communities, and when the Dutch Americanized their ways - so did the Zabriskies."

We really know virtually nothing about Albert, for in his 49 years in America there are surprisingly few records concerning him, or made by him, not even a will. He did leave five sons who had among them 39 children, 35 of whom married. From them has developed a large family whose members have been "mostly farmers, small manufacturers, tradesmen and merchants. Some intermarried with prominent American families. Some achieved fortunes. They have always displayed marked patriotism and in many instances have served their new country well. Beginning with the Revolution, there is no war in the history of the United States, where Zabriskies did not distinguish themselves. The family has spread all over the United States, yet there are some who still live on the lands owned by the original Albert."

All is not quite as painted by these quotations from several Polish American writers. For example, there were several Zabriskies who were Loyalists during the Revolution. And who knows a Zabriskie that was, or is, widely famed? On the other hand, whoever heard of a Zabriskie who was infamous? Albert, even though shrouded in mystery by the lack of records and by the passage of time, was an ancestor we can all be proud of. The Zabriskie family, "the oldest Polish family in America", which at the same time became an early Dutch American family, is one of which we can likewise be proud, even if there are a few glamorous fables stemming from an absence of factual information about its progenitor.

GENEALOGICAL SUMMARY

Albert Zaborowskij died 1 (not 11) Sep 1711, aged "about 73 years" at Ackinsack (Teaneck-Bogota-Ridgefield Park area), N.J., and was buried there according to the German Lutheran records of New York City (English translation by The Holland Society). His death has erroneously been recorded in the same register as between the years 1714 and 1719. No record has been found of a will or of the administration of his estate by the courts. The Bergen County land records show that his sons, in the years 1712 and 1734 arranged for the division of his estate among them.

Albert married Machtelt Vanderlinde in early January 1677 (banns 17 Dec 1676), when he was about 38 years and she about 16. She was the daughter of Joost Vanderlinde and Fytje Roelofs Van Gelder, christened 19 Jan 1661 in the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City. See Appendix P regarding the Vanderlinde family. Machtelt was still living as late as (and probably later than) 10 Dec 1734, when her son Christian agreed that, "I do likewise oblige myself, my heirs, executors and assigns to deliver to my mother, Magtel, yearly during her lifetime, the sum of fifty shillings when she demand the same." When she died is not known, but obviously she did not die in 1725 as has been often stated. Incidentally, her name is written as Magdalena in the German language Lutheran records.

x5 CHRISTIAN - born 2 June 1694 and chr 3 July 1694 at Hack. Md Leah Hopper x6 HENDRICK - chr 1 Nov 1696 at Hack. Md Geertje Hopper.

(In contrast to these facts, see Appendix O-12 (an extract from an obituary dated in 1878) which states that Albert "married a LADY OF NOBLE BIRTH who had come hither with him in the same vessell".)

(An article similar to this chapter has been published by The Holland Society of New York (de Halve Maen - July 1961), the Polish American Historical Association (Polish American Studies - July-Dec. 1962), and in the Genealogical Helper - March 1962.)

OUR SURNAME

The original spelling of our name was "Saboriski" (the German form) or "Zaborowski" (the Polish form), to which Albert added a Dutch second "i" (or "j" as it was written), making his surname "Zaborowskij". (It did not end in "y" as often incorrectly copied.) The double vowel was used in Dutch and German to strengthen the sound of the vowel.

Albert's second son, Jan, retained this slightly modified Polish form of our name; the other four sons of Albert began using our present form, or at least something similar to it. But in the records that have come down to us the form seems to have depended more on the way the various scribes spelled the name than on the desires of the family members. In the old New Jersey records there are over a hundred variations of spelling, all stemming from three basic forms: (1) Zaborowskij, (2) Saboriski, and (3) Zabriskie.

Some members of the family changed the form of the surname as time passed. For example, Hendrick C Zabriskie(38), signed his marriage bond in 1753 as Zaborowskij and his will in 1786 as Zabriskij.

In recent times a small branch of the family used a Zobriskie spelling, and a tiny western branch still uses Zabrisky. No living members of the family have been found who use Zabriski. Those using this spelling who responded to research queries are from recently immigrated families who have adopted this form of our surname. And not all who use the regular spelling are true members of this particular family since some are newcomers and some are colored people. (It has been a real task to sort them out and exclude them from this history; and some of those listed as "unknown" may belong to these categories.)

In the genealogical records the Zabriskie spelling has been used unless another form was obviously used by the member of the family under discussion.

OUR PATRONYMICS

The Dutch used the patronymic style of surnames; that is, the first name of a child's father became the surname of the child with s, se, sen, etc., added. For example, Jacob, son of Jan was Jacob Janse. By the time Albert Zaborowskij came to New Netherland in 1662, this patronymic system was only partially in use, as the Dutch were often using place names in addition to the patronymic. For example, Jacob Janse Van Hoorn, that is, Jacob, son of Jan from, or of, Hoorn. As our family took its place as an early Dutch American family, surnames were becoming fixed (that is, not changing each generation), and the patronymic was often only the initial of the father's first name. Thus Albert, son of Jacob (or Jan or Joost) Zabriskie, was Albert J Zabriskie; Albert, son of Christian, was Albert C Zabriskie; and Albert, son of Hendrick, was Albert H Zabriskie. This patronymic initial was not an abbreviation and should not be followed by a period (.).

This use of initials became well established in our family, and the practice carried down in most branches to 1800 and later. Once in a while two initials were used: being either (1) the first letter of the father's first name plus his patronymic initial, or (2) the first two letters of the father's first name. For examples. John J H Zabriskie(1936), son of Jacob H Zabriskie; and John A L Zabriskie(311), son of Albert J Zabriskie.

Occasionally, the whole name rather than just the initial was used as in the olden times. For example, Jacob Abram Zabriskie(694), son of Abram A Zabriskie. And at times true middle names were used, they often being surnames of related families. Some examples. John Van Houten Zabriskie(626), grandson of John Van Houten, names a son Jacob Banta Zabriskie for the boy's grandfather, Jacob Banta. Sometimes these "multi-family" names must have been troublesome to use. A case in point: John David Terhune Zabriskie(2177) soon became John D. Terhune Zabriskie, then John D.T. Zabriskie, and later just plain John T. Zabriskie.

In the genealogical records the full name, or what is considered to be the actual practice of the individual concerned has been used.

OUR GIVEN NAMES

The early Zabriskies, for all practicable purposes, became Dutch Americans. They adopted the Dutch customs, including the Dutch naming system. Under this system the eldest sons were named for the two grandfathers, and the eldest girls for the two grandmothers. Other children were usually named for other relatives. This led to the use of a few given names over and over. Four of Albert's five sons named their first sons Albert, and the fifth so named his second son. There have been many other Alberts in our family, also Jacobs, Johns, Joosts (Georges and Josiahs), Christians, and Hendricks (Henrys), the names of Albert's five sons. And we have used many times, such names as Jacobus (James), Andrew, Abraham (Abram), Cornelius, David, Garret, Peter, and William.

On the female side of the family, three girls of the third generation were named Machtelt for their grandmother, Machtelt Vanderlinde. But there were no great granddaughters of the Zabriskie surname given Machtelt as a first name, so our maternal progenitor's given name died out early. On the other hand, the names of the wives of the first five Zabriskie sons were frequently used. There have been many Annas, Elizabeths, Margaret's, Leahs and Geertjes (Charitys and Gittys, seldom, if ever, Gertrudes). And, of course, the wives of the third and fourth generations brought in more names such as: Maria, Jane, Christina, Martha, Aaltje (Allie, Alida, Adaline, Ellen, etc.), Wyntje (Lavinia), Catherine, Sarah and Matilda.

OUR DUTCH GIVEN NAMES

As infant Zabriskies arrived and were christened in the various Reformed Dutch Churches of New Jersey and New York, their names were written in the Dutch form of the names, either by choice of the parents or by virtue of the language used in the church registers. In many branches of the family the Dutch forms of given names were used into the early 1800's. Many of these Zabriskies with Dutch forms of given names later in life began using the Anglican forms of the names. This practice poses problems for the family genealogist, as he is faced with the choice of the form to use. To demonstrate: Shall he use the form in the Church registers, or say, the form on a gravestone? Dirck Kuyper and his wife Cathlyntje Van Pelt both died in the mid-1700's when Dutch forms were used almost entirely. However, their present gravestones read Richard Cooper and Catherine Van Pelt.

The sons of Dirck-Richard would use the first letter of his given name as a patronymic initial, but should they use a "D" or an "R"? And, if already using a "D" when the father converts Dirck to Richard, do they change the patronymic initial from "D" to "R"? And do grandchildren named Dirck Kuyper (say Smith) become Richard Cooper Smith? On the other hand, can there be a Richard Cooper Smith while his grandfather is still Dirck Kuyper?

And this conversion of Cathlyntje to Catherine demonstrates a really difficult problem; what is the correct English form of a Dutch given name? Catherine in English usually stands for the Dutch Tryntje, not Cathlyntje, which is normally Caroline in English. And let us take Annatje - Anna or Hannah; and Antje - Ann, Anne or Anna. Can one be sure that an Anna Zabriskie is being correctly identified as the Antje (or should it be an Annatje) Zabriskie of the Dutch Church register? "Tyna" (or "Tyne") presents other difficult problems, as it has been used as the short form of Cathlyntje, Martyntje, Willemyntje, Francyntje and Magdalyntje (this last, a Dutch spelling seldom used).

In the genealogical records, the Dutch form of given names has been used when there is doubt as to the exact English form, if any used by the person during his own life. When, for example, Joost Zabriskie later used George, the English form has been shown.

MARRIAGE DATES

The Dutch used the "proclamation of banns" style of marriage ceremony. Under this system, the proposed marriage was proclaimed by word or written notice, usually for three Sundays, by the domine of the congregation of each of the contracting parties. If, at the end of the proclamation period, no one had objected to the marriage, the ceremony could be performed. One way to avoid this system was to get a civil license, because a licensed marriage could be performed at once.

In the early genealogical records are found three kinds of marriage dates: (1) the date of the actual ceremony, (2) the date of the first proclamation of banns (if the date of the ceremony is not also given, we often do not know which date we have, the banns or the ceremony), and (3) the date of the license, if such was obtained. If two dates are available, that is, the ceremony plus the banns or the license, only the date of the ceremony has been used in the genealogical records.

DIFFERING DATES

One of the great problems of the genealogist is that of dates for the same event that differ in two or more record sources. If the difference could be resolved by double checking, this was done, but when it could not, the one that seems most likely to be correct has been used in the genealogical records. At times all versions have been used (which is the best practice), but in the interest of brevity this has not been done in all cases. Some illustrations:

(1) The parents have given the birth or marriage date of a child and then records directly from the child have dates that differ. The date given by the person most directly involved has usually been used.

(2) The dates differ as to Mar. or May and Jan. or Jun. Often these have been checked through other material. If not, the most logical one has been used.

(3) Dates copied from old records and gravestones do not agree with, for example, the known age of a person at death. Often the error made in copying can be detected. 1, 4, and 7 look very much alike in the old records; as do 3 and 8; 6, 9, and 0; and 2 and 5. As with the names of the months, the most logical one has been used.

(4) Transpositions are sometimes difficult to detect. 1989 for 1899 is obvious but not 1889 for 1898, or 21 for 12. Transpositions are troublesome for they can be made in the final draft and not be found by the proofreader.

OUR EARLY ENVIRONMENT

On 3 Sep 1609 Hendrick Hudson, an Englishman in the employ of the Dutch East India Company, sailed into New York Bay on the ship "de Halve Maen". Thus began the history of New Netherland. Soon the Dutch were establishing settlements along the Hudson River, one in 1624 on the southern tip of Manhattan. This became the chief settlement of the colony and was called New Amsterdam. It was to this port that new arrivals (many of whom were not actual Dutchmen) came and where most of the early New Jersey Dutch settlers first lived, that is, either on Manhattan proper or in the five nearby Dutch towns on Long Island (all within the present day Brooklyn).

The first Dutch settlers of New Jersey came to the west side of the Hudson across from New Amsterdam in the 1630's, but the first real village, Bergen (now Jersey City), was not established until 1660. From this Jersey City base settlers moved up the Hackensack and Passaic River valleys. Soon several settlements (e.g. Ackinsack, Acquackanonk, and Second River) were established. Thus began the history of present-day Bergen County, original seat of the Zabriskie family. (See also Appendix A.)

The Dutch lost control of New Netherland to the English in 1664, except for a short period in 1675 when the Dutch regained control. New Netherland was divided by the English into two or really three separate colonies, New York, East Jersey, and West Jersey. Later, East and West Jerseys were combined as New Jersey. So, we may say that for practical purposes the political history of New Jersey began under the English and not the Dutch. However, Bergen County remained Dutch in the sense that most of the citizens were of Dutch extraction or at least under Dutch influence. Bergen County place names, roads, villages, etc., were predominantly Dutch (or Indian), as were the churches. This Dutch "flavor" remained for many years.

The earliest houses in Bergen County were temporary shelters, either dugouts or crudely built houses. The first permanent houses were built of stone or wood, one story with straw thatched roofs. Later there was developed the "Dutch Colonial house", which was of one and a half stories. The average Dutch farmhouse of Bergen County was erected by the owner with the help of his wife, grown sons, and neighboring farmers, sometimes under the supervision of a local carpenter. Where slaves were present, these houses became more substantial in size, and the stones were more carefully cut.

The kitchen with its large fireplace was the gathering place of the family at all times. The bedrooms were in the half-story, often open, attic. The earlier attics had windows only in the gable ends. Later came dormers. Windows of the main floor were usually small; the outside doors were divided to provide ventilation when the upper half was open; and the lower half closed to keep out the chickens and pigs, and no doubt to keep the toddlers in.

A word or two about furnishings: In the ordinary homes there were few, if any, "luxury" items such as pictures, carpets, mirrors, and clocks. Furniture was limited to essentials such as beds, chests, tables, chairs, "settles", spinning wheels and cradles. Dishes were usually of pewter or earthen ware, very little chinaware.

As to the early Dutch American dress, women wore many petticoats under a full skirt, gathered at the waist. Sleeves were tight and elbow high. A white kerchief, folded in a triangle, was used to "dress the shoulders". Linen caps were worn. Men wore billowing knee britches. Shoes were wooden, except on Sunday when leather shoes were often worn.

The following is a first hand account of life among the Early settlers in Acquackanonk which applies equally to nearby Bergen County.

"Mr. Thomas Rudyard, Deputy Governor of the Province of New Jersey 1682-1683, described the life of the few inhabitants then living in the area of old Acquackanonk in a report to the twelve proprietors of East Jersey.

Rudyard stated that the people were generally sober, industrious and professing Christianity, wise in their generation, courteous in their behavior and respectful to those in office.

Pork and beef were selling at two cents a pound, fish and fowl were plentiful. Wheat sold for four shillings and Indian wheat for two shillings and six pence a bushel. There was cider a-plenty which sold for one penny a quart and "a good drink made of water and molasses for about two shillings a barrel as wholesome as your eight shillings beer in England." There was to be had good venison at eighteen cents per quarter, eggs at three pence a dozen. Grapes, walnuts, peaches, strawberries and many other things were plentiful in the woods nearby.

The richer farmers, who settled hereabouts, kept from eight to ten servants each, both men and women. Each farmer kept from ten to thirty cows, several oxen and a large number of horses which were allowed to scatter about the country during the summer. Only those which were required for farm work were kept in their stables. Great herds of swine roamed in the woods although the flocks of sheep were usually kept near the farm yards due to the wolves which frequented the woods which had a plentiful supply of oak, chestnut, walnut, ash, poplar, fir and red cedar.

The soil hereabouts was fertile which produced plentiful crops including good flax and hemp which were spun and manufactured into cloth. "The country is well stocked with deer, conies, and wild fowl of various sorts," says Rudyard. There is an abundance of wild turkeys, pigeons, partridge, plover, quail, swans, geese, and ducks.

Delicious fruits are produced in an abundance such as grapes, plums, mulberries, apricots, peaches, pears, apples, quinces and water-melons.

The early settlers of this county led comfortable lives. The kitchen was the family room for here was the large fireplace. The furniture was hand-made from logs taken from the farm, dressed at the saw mill and seasoned until the cabinet maker made his visit. The tanner, the shoemaker and the cooper as well as the distiller made their rounds of the neighborhood in the same manner as the cabinet maker where they usually were given employment wherever they stopped.

The men usually made their own head gear - usually straw hats for summer and coon skin caps for the winter. The women carded, spun, wove and dyed their flax, wool and hemp. Some housewives made the garments needed for the family while others employed the seamstresses who traveled from family to family. Dyeing was an art known and practiced by the housewife. Trees and plants supplied the materials for the dyes. For a brownish red color, the bark of the white oak was used; hickory bark or peach leaves produced a good yellow; maple bark was used for a rich, dark purple; the bark and hulls of the black walnut produced a seal-brown while green walnuts mixed with sumach berries produced a very good black."

FAMILY GEOGRAPHY

The main points of early Zabriskie geography in Bergen County and vicinity are shown on the following page. Albert Zaborowskij came first to New Amsterdam (New York City), and some years later located his home in Ackinsack. There were really, in addition to present-day Hackensack on the west side of the Hackensack River, two Ackinsacks on the east side. The earliest "Old" Ackinsack was in the vicinity of the Demarest patent near present day Oradell. "New" Ackinsack was south of the "Old" in the Teaneck-Bogota-Ridgefield Park area.

Albert owned land in Ackinsack, Schraalenburg, Paramus and Hackensack. Three sons, Jacob, Christian and Hendrick built family homes in Paramus; John in Hackensack; and Joost in Schraalenburgh. From these points the family soon spread to all parts of Bergen County and overflowed into the adjacent areas, mainly to Passaic and Hudson Counties in New Jersey, and to Manhattan (New York City), Brooklyn, and Rockland County in New York.

Early Reformed Dutch churches of direct interest to us were those in New York City, Jersey City (Bergen), Hackensack, Tappan, N.Y., Bergenfield (South Schraalenburgh), Ridgewood (Paramus), Dumont (North Schraalenburgh), Upper Saddle River (Saddle River), and Passaic (Acquackanonk). Other Dutch churches, and those of other denominations are referred to as required in the genealogical records. But those listed here, and the New York City German Lutheran Church, were the main ones during the very early period of the family. (The fact that a child was christened in one of these early churches did not necessarily mean that he was born near the church. Church jurisdiction often extended to other localities. Then too, several churches had the same pastor and the ordinance may have been recorded in the wrong church register.)

There are very few Zabriskie place names in the United States. No states, counties, or cities bear the name. There are several Zabriskie streets in Bergen County. The only real place name found is "Zabriskie Point" in Death Valley, Calif. It was named for the members of the family who helped establish the borax industry in Death Valley.

OUR EARLY BURIAL GROUNDS

The first Zabriskie, Albert, was almost certainly buried, as was the custom, in a small family plot near his home in Ackinsack - one writer surmises "in his orchard". But we cannot be entirely sure where he was buried in Ackinsack, as no original source record exists. Machtelt his wife, dying years later than Albert may have been buried at Ackinsack or in the Zabriskie Cemetery at Paramus.

This Zabriskie (Zabriskie-Hopper) Cemetery is on the east bank of the Saddle River, near the site of the home of Jacob Zabriskie(2) on Paramus Road near Grove Street in Paramus. This family burial ground was used for years by the Paramus area Zabriskies. Then came use of the Reformed Churchyard in Paramus (now in Ridgewood) and in Saddle River (now in Upper Saddle River). Other early cemeteries used by the family were those "on the Green" in Hackensack and the South Schraalenburgh Churchyard in Bergenfield.

As other cemeteries were built in Bergen County Zabriskie descendants were buried in them. Examples are the Valleau Cemetery in Ridgewood, the North Schraalenburgh Churchyard and Woodside Cemetery in Dumont, and the Hackensack and New York Cemeteries in Hackensack. There are many others throughout the entire area.

FAMILY RELIGIOUS AFFILIATIONS

Albert Zaborowskij was of the German Lutheran faith and his wife joined this faith. But all of their descendants for several generations belonged to the Protestant Reformed Dutch Church. In time, came a gradual breaking away from this faith to various others. Soon there were Zabriskie Episcopalians, Methodists and Lutherans. Then came Mormons, Roman Catholics, Baptists and Presbyterians and many other denominations. Some are still of the Reformed faith.

Members of the family have served in the ministry of various churches, mainly in the Dutch Reformed and Episcopal, but also in the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Mormon, and undoubtedly others.

In the genealogical records the religious faith of the person or family under discussion has been indicated when the information was available. The research questionnaire requested this information, but often it was not given.

FAMILY OCCUPATIONS

One method of identifying a person is to give his occupation. In one of the very first Zabriskie deeds, Albert Zaborowskij was referred to as a planter - a farmer. And down through the years since then, agricultural pursuits have been followed by many members of the family.

But from the very first, various trade and manufacturing endeavors have been followed. The men of the second and other early generations built and operated grist mills, saw mills, docks and wharfs. They became masters of ships, merchants, and owners of stores, taverns, and hotels. And as manufacturing became more widespread they established silk mills and other small industrial enterprises. Later, we helped establish the life insurance business in New York City, and the borax industry in Death Valley.

Nor have the professional fields been slighted. Our family has had, for example, numerous lawyers, doctors, ministers, teachers, and engineers of various types.

Today our family has within its membership the full gamut of occupations from farmers and ranchers, to professional men and women, to technical experts, to business executives, to teachers, to ministers.

The research questionnaire asked for occupations, and when received or otherwise located, this information has been included in the genealogical records.

FAMILY MILITARY SERVICE

Zabriskies have served in all wars of the United States. A careful search for information about the military services rendered by our family has not been made, but enough material is at hand to truthfully make the opening statement of this paragraph.

John Zabriskie Jr.(99) was a Lieutenant Colonel of the Bergen County Militia just before the Revolutionary War started. This is the earliest military record located. However, John resigned his commission when the War started. Regarding family activities during this War see Appendixes B and C.

Research has shown that several family members served in the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the War Between the States, and the Spanish American War. Many members served in World War I, and there were at least two American Legion posts named in their honor (Mt. Pleasant, Utah and Jersey City, N.J.). We were well represented by both male and female members of the family in World War II. Lt Cmdr David Zabriskie Jr. commanded a submarine which was lost through enemy action in the South Pacific. Members of the family were killed in Korea, and some are now serving in the Armed Forces.

Available information about military service has been given in the genealogical records.

INTRAFAMILY MARRIAGES

Marriages among Zabriskie cousins of varying degrees from first to distant are numerous. Such is to be expected among the members of the family who remained in Bergen County and vicinity. To illustrate with a non-Zabriskie surname example at hand, the children of James Bradford Van Houten and Katharine Elizabeth Theis have 18 lines of descent from the first Blauvelt in America. The old Dutch families in Bergen County still intermarry but such marriages have decreased in proportion as non-Dutch families moved into the "Dutch" towns: first the English, then the Irish and Germans, and in the past century, all nationalities.

There was no Zabriskie intramarriage in the third generation among the 39 first cousins. There were 12 in the fourth generation and 20 in the fifth, counting the generation to which the husband belonged. Only Zabriskie family relationships were considered; if all family lines were used, the number would be greater. Intramarriages in later generations have not been counted, but those of the present day vary from first to distant cousins. Many of distant relationship are not aware of the Zabriskie intramarriage.

Not all Zabriskie intrafamily marriages are recorded in this history because not all Zabriskie descendants are recorded herein. Some family members have not been located and some who were have failed to cooperate sufficiently. Many female family relationships have become hidden and their present day descendants have not been identified as Zabriskie family members. And the very scope of the work has permitted very little research among, or about, present day non-Zabriskie surname descendants.

PORTRAITS

Portraits have not been included in this history for several reasons:

First, few, if any portraits of members of the early generations of the families are in existence today. (It is doubtful that they ever did exist as Bergen County appears to have had no early portrait painters. And no doubt the innate frugality of most of the old families precluded the importation of painters from other localities.)

Pictures (of all types - not just portraits) are expensive to reproduce and their use would, therefore, greatly increase the price of these volumes.

Pictures of members of more recent generations would be too numerous.

SUMMARY

In Dec 1962, Jeanne (Mrs Joel M.) Altshuler who owns and lives in the oldest extant Zabriskie house (built about 1712 by Joost Zabriskie (4)) prepared an excellent summary of "Albert Zabriskie: A Man, A Time". This was published 29 Dec 1962 in "Weekend" the magazine section of the Hackensack (N.J.) Record.

Mrs Altshuler, who is not a Zabriskie descendant, has always been interested in the family. Her article reflects this. In commenting the "Weekend" said "The history of the Zabriskie family in the United States is a history of these United States". The article is reprinted herein as Appendix Q.

2 JACOB ZABRISKIE - son of Albrecht Zaborowskij (1), born 12 Apr 1679 (according to records of descendants) at Pemmerpogh (Bayonne), likely at the home of the parents of his mother who lived there. He was a farmer. He became a member of the Ref Ch at Hack on 8 Apr 1699 just before his mar. His is the first Zabriskie name on these membership records. After his mar, he lived first in Hack but soon moved to Paramus where he built what is believed to be the first permanent house in that area. It stood on Paramus Road near Grove Street. An inscription on the cornerstone of the house gave the date as 1713 and included the initials J Z and A T for Jacob and his wife. The old Zabriskie Ceme is nearby. In it is an old stone marked J.Z., likely indicating his grave. His will was da 1 July 1756 and pr 26 Sep 1758. In it he mentioned: (1) Chil John, Stephen, Jacob, Henritie and Fitie; (2) Gdson Andries Zabriskie; (3) Gddau Antie - heiress of eldest son, Albert; (4) Gdchil Andries and Jacob - sons of dau Jannetje and Abraham Hopper. The will has been partially destroyed and other names, if given by Jacob, are now missing. The exs named in the will were sons John, Stephen and Jacob. Lands mentioned were: (1) east of the Steenbergh; (2) at Weeramus; and (3) over the Slink, an island.

Md 26 Aug 1750 at Hack, (Rev.) Johan Hendrick Goetschius, son of Maurice Goetschius and Esther Werndtlin. He was the storm center of the Ref Chs from the day he landed in Philadelphia in 1735 until his death 14 Nov 1774. His father had led a group of 400 emigrants from Switzerland and had been delegated supervision of the Ref Chs in Pa. He, however died upon arrival in Phila., and his son became the boy-wonder preacher of the area, covering about 20 parishes - all without legal ordination.

In 1741 he was ordained by Dorsius, Frelinghuysen and the Presbyterian Tennant, in an effort to test the requirement that all theological candidates must return to Holland for ordination. In his first regular parish at Jamaica, L.I., the validity of his ordination was soon challenged and charges and counter-charges flew. Communications between New York and the Classis of Amsterdam were slow and the delay resulted in a full-scale breach in the Ch between the conservative Conferentie party and the liberal Coetus.

In 1748 Goetschius was vindicated by the Dutch authorities and moved to Bergen Co. Here in addition to serving his parishes, he began to tutor young men for the ministry. Again his tempestuous disposition led to determined opposition and equally ardent approbation. Eventually his theological students formed the nucleus of Queens College (now Rutgers Univ) and he became one of its first trustees (Biog material from Mrs. Ruth P. Heidgerd of New Paltz, N.Y.)
